Oversight, accountability, and a much stronger labor voice are all likely to be features of a new version of San Francisco’s long-criticized and currently mothballed City Workforce Alignment Committee, which was responsible for planning and coordinating the City’s workforce development programs.

‘Continuing Conversations’

Resurrecting the committee — and doing it right this time — remains a work in progress, but things appear to be looking up, according to local labor leaders and city officials.

“While we’re not really pleased with how long it’s taken — I think there’s some complicated technicalities — I’m confident it’s on the front burner,” said Vince Courtney Jr., a former SF Building and Construction Trades Council Trustee and longtime local labor leader.

The Workforce Alignment Committee was phased out at the end of 2019. It had been established five years prior by an ordinance sponsored by then-supervisors Malia Cohen, David Chiu, and London Breed. City department heads primarily composed the committee, which was overseen by an advisory committee of nonprofit leaders.

After more than three years of growing calls from local labor leaders to revive the committee with a larger labor presence and more oversight, progress appears to be finally moving in that direction. SF Board of Supervisors President Shamann Walton is said to be considering legislation, with members of the building trades (continued on page 16)
Celebrating Our Work in the Past and Present, Voting for More in the Future

By Rudy Gonzalez, Secretary-Treasurer
San Francisco Building and Construction Trades Council

125th Anniversary Event Right Around the Corner
Well folks, it’s finally happened. We’ve officially nailed down a date, time and venue for the our council’s 125th anniversary celebration event: Saturday, July 16, from noon to 2:30 p.m. at Salesforce Park Amphitheater. (Flip to page 5 and check out the ad to find out more details.)

This momentous occasion was initially delayed an entire year due to the pandemic, of course. Six months ago, when pandemic conditions began to subside, our council approved and announced a date that we ended up having to cancel due to continuing Covid-variant-related public health orders. While we simultaneously worked to secure the presence of our very busy Public Service Awardee, Nancy Pelosi, we slowly but surely were able to hammer out the particulars and set the final date and venue in stone.

The 125th anniversary event is meant to commend well over a century of a unionized building and construction trade workforce fighting hard to make San Francisco the labor-strong city it remains today, and to honor that workforce’s supporters and its leading lights. We’ve worked to plan an event that reflects that, and we’re looking forward to raising a glass together to salute our legacy and our future as the forward to raising a glass together to that reflects that, and we’re looking forward to raising a glass together to that.

UCSF Parnassus Is a Go
The University of California Board of Regents’ recent vote to approve the new hospital project at UCSF Parnassus is a massive win for our movement that can’t be overstated.

In a purely practical sense, the regents’ decision clears the way for funding to the project to start flowing in earnest, guaranteeing a groundbreaking will indeed be forthcoming. That means that before too long, that money will — in the form of good wages — begin going into the pockets of up to 1,200 Bay Area construction and building trades union workers over the project’s 10-year timeline. This will help to create some much-needed long-term stability for so many who have been struggling on the bench after being sidelined due to the pandemic and the chilling effect it had on SF’s big-project boom.

The decision is important symbolically, as well, in that it underscores the fact that the old union saying still holds true: When we fight, we win. The community workforce project labor agreement negotiated by our council, UCSF, and general contractor Herrero Boldt Webcor is a victory for labor, ensuring local hiring, labor peace, union standards, and more. If we can reach an agreement that’s this good for workers on a project as big as this one, then we can and should fight for such agreements on every project.

For more details on the approval and the build, check out the article on the project, which begins on the front page of this edition.

Voting Is Also a Go, So Go Vote
The California primary election is on Tuesday, June 7. Please take the opportunity to make your vote heard by participating in the election. Check out the top of the Up-Front section on the facing page for our council’s positions on the city ballot initiatives.

Prop A, the MUNI Reliability and Street Safety Bond, is an especially important one for us. If passed, it’ll provide the funding needed to allow SF to build out its transportation infrastructure significantly — and that will mean a lot of well-paid, long-running jobs for our locals.

Make sure you’re registered and find out more about how to vote at registertovote.ca.gov. Then, go vote!

Union Work Is Safer Work
May kicked off with Construction Safety Week, and I’m sure you all heard plenty at the time from your contractors about jobsite safety. But as we wrap up the month, I think it’s a good time to reflect on the hazards and the benefits of our work.

Staying safe on the jobsite should always be a priority; it’s no secret that working in construction is risky by nature. But there are ways to mitigate those risks, and one big one is to join a union. Recent data collected by the Occupational Health and Safety Administration from 2,800 union jobites and 34,200 nonunion ones revealed that union projects were 19% less likely to have been cited with health and safety violations and, overall, incurred an average of 34% fewer violations per inspection when compared to non-union projects.

That being said, never take your own safety or that of your fellow workers on the jobsite for granted. Always follow safety protocol, look out for one another, and report any issues to your union representative right away.

Work safe, and be proud to be union!

— The Publishers
“Good union jobs are a community benefit.”

Preston cited a recent Housing Our Workers report, jointly authored by the Council of Community Housing Organizations, the San Francisco Labor Council, and Jobs with Justice, revealing that only 6% of workers are union-built projects. tug-of-war between unions and live in rent-controlled units, know plenty about. This underscores the intersection between the housing affordability and labor movements, he said. It’s something union and labor to be pitted against each other, which is often the attempt at the state level,” said Preston. According to Preston, the fight of the working-class folks who are renting their homes is crucial. “There have always been concerns about displacement and housing stability in [District 5],” Preston said. “I’ve been living in District 5 for almost all of my 29 years in San Francisco, and there have been different waves of gentrification and booms and busts in the market. Throughout all of that, the fight of the working-class folks who are renting their homes and the pressures on them have been nonstop.”

Decades of escalating home values and soaring rents have led to ongoing struggle for the district’s residents, the vast majority of whom are renters. But District 5 Supervisor Dean Preston, who took office a few months before the pandemic hit, has leveraged his history as an affordable housing advocate to help people stay in their homes during the crisis. Preston has worked as a tenant’s rights attorney representing low-income residents facing eviction, and he authored SF’s Tenant Right to Counsel law. These experiences positioned him to fight for his district’s residents by doubling down on anti-eviction advocacy and pushing for robust renter relief programs.

The ‘X’ Marks the Spot

It’s been 64 years since this illustration by labor editorial cartoonist John Baer was first published, and a lot has changed in the labor movement. But the message is as important as ever: It’s imperative that union workers vote — and vote in their interests.

CITY PROFILE

District 5

By Jacob Bourne
Contributing Writer

During the recent redrawing of San Francisco’s supervisory district maps, District 5 was caught in the midst of a controversial move to reset borders in order to balance population numbers. After a vote by the Redistricting Task Force, District 5 now encompasses the Tenderloin, which was previously part of District 6, in addition to District 5’s long-held neighborhoods (see “Fast Facts” at right).

District 5’s economy. Tourism, dining, and entertainment are some key drivers of District 5’s economy.

Play: The Haight-Ashbury is one of San Francisco’s most iconic neighborhoods; it was the heart of America’s hippie and counterculture movements of the 1960s. One of San Francisco’s major commercial and cultural centers, the Fillmore District, is known for its jazz scene, festivals, and diversity. Japantown is one of the oldest ethnic enclaves in the United States and one of its few remaining Japanese enclaves. The Painted Ladies, a row of well-preserved Victorian and Edwardian houses painted in vibrant colors in the Lower Haight, are a long-standing tourist attraction of District 5.

Major Projects in the Works: Although currently on hiatus and up for sale, a project at 400 Divisadero Street in the Lower Haight could result in 186 apartments and over 8,000 square feet of retail potentially built by union labor. Freedom West, a co-op in the Fillmore District, has plans for a redevelopment project that will add market-rate units and a hotel. The goal is to make it a union-built project.
Angeles under the direction of Lab Director Dr. Parkash Gill. Over the past 15 years novel new treatment options Veglin, which went through FDA-approved clinical trials phase 1 and 2, and now EPH B4, in FDA-approved clinical trials phase 1, have helped expand the depth of research and expand the types of treatment options. This offers greater hope to those afflicted with asbestos-caused cancer, with options not previously available. None of this could have been done without the support of the Building and Construction Trades Council of California and also Southern California Pipe Trades District Council 16, the Heat & Frost Insulators 16, along with the support from the Western States Conference, and all their able leaders and supporting local unions.

As asbestos disease and mesothelioma tend to surface later in life, we recommend workers take a chest X-ray screening every three years where the results are examined by a certified B reader radiologist, a doctor who is additionally trained to know what is and is not an asbestos marker and asbestosis. Plus you will increase your chance of discovery at an early stage, should you have lung cancer, which would likely respond better to treatment options.

After a construction project that brought some much-needed work to building and construction trades members during the thick of the pandemic, the Plumbers and Pipefitters of San Francisco now have an attractive new union hall and office to call home. UA 38’s recent 75-year anniversary served as the building’s public grand opening, bringing in more than 500 guests during two days of events on April 29 and 30.

The four-story, 29,000-square-foot hall is located at 1621 Market Street and is just one aspect of the larger Market Street Project, which spans several blocks surrounding the hall. The project was planned jointly over several years by the City, UA 38’s investment partners, and UA 38 Business Manager Larry Mazzola Jr.

Pelosi Pays Visit to Plumbers’ Post, Praises Bay Labor Power

On Wednesday, May 20, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi visited UA Local 38 Plumbers and Pipefitters’ Larry Mazzola Sr. Union Hall. She was there to thank the labor organizations of California and of San Francisco, in particular, for granting her their endorsement in her bid for reelection to the U.S. House of Representatives in the upcoming November election.

The event drew a number of SF Building Trades mainstays and many others from the Bay Area labor network who showed up to celebrate Pelosi’s campaign and to exchange a mutual salute of solidarity and leadership all around.

Congratulations in advance to Pelosi and to all of the union members who will help her win.

Local 3 is the proud recipient of three 2022 BAC Craft Awards, the highest number awarded to any U.S. BAC local in 2022.

Since 1986, the BAC International Union Craft Awards Program has saluted BAC locals and workers for excellence in the trowel trades and distinguished service to their locals and communities. As the best-trained, most highly skilled masonry workers in North America, BAC members take great pride in the enduring quality, endless variety, and powerful beauty of masonry construction. The BAC Craft Awards share that sense of pride and accomplishment with BAC families, their communities, and the union contractors and design professionals with whom members work.

Retired vice-chairman and field representative Steve Kantonenim submitted all three entries in 2020 prior to his retirement — the awards were delayed until 2022 due to the pandemic. I’d like to thank Steve for his hard work in helping us win this trifecta, which proves yet again that the members of Local 3 are the best hands in the business!

BETTER TERRAZZO PROJECT

Transbay Salesforce Transit Center, Associated Terrazzo

Over 10 years in the making, the terminal’s 24,000-square-foot Grand Hall houses an exceptionally intricate public art installation in terrazzo.

Sixteen colors and 375 waterjet-cut elements of brass and zinc form the “secret garden” design, with a collection of hummingbirds, poppies, brass insects, and abstract shapes. This array includes the following: 111 insects made of waterjet brass, 15 waterjet-cut zinc “Japanese clouds,” and 248 sets of waterjet-cut zinc “Diamond Dots.”

The waterjet pieces required a much more skilled labor force when it came to the grinding process throughout the entire terrazzo flooring. The design beautifully complements the scale and architectural elements of the space.

The terrazzo was installed on a concrete pouring slab that contains a radiant flooring system over several inches of rigid foam insulation. In addition to the Grand Hall installation, another 6,000 square feet of single-color epoxy terrazzo flooring was installed in five different areas of the transit center at the same time, including five staircases of precast terrazzo and 11 elevator cab floors.

When installers were asked to expedite the six-month installation schedule, they trimmed a month off and increased the quality of the bent divider strip patterns by prefabricating the divider strips on panels — many as large as 11 by 17 feet — aligned on the construction site.

This exquisite terrazzo project will be enjoyed by millions who pass through the transit center, a landmark for the San Francisco Bay Area.

BEST RAIN SCREEN PROJECT

Hayward 21st Century Library and Community Learning Center, Cleveland Marble

The City of Hayward is proud of its totally modern 21st Century Library and Community Learning Center, which is one of the largest net-zero-energy public buildings in the country.

The three-story, 58,000-square-foot building is setting a new standard in environmental sustainability. In addition to being 100% energy-self-sufficient and powered by 100% carbon-free sources of electricity, it will conserve drinking water by capturing, filtering, and storing rainwater for non-potable uses, such as toilet water and landscape irrigation.

This $60 million project suffered a series of construction delays for nearly two years. These prolonged delays — through no fault of Cleveland Marble — created numerous setbacks, multiple mobilizations, and general project dysfunction, including incorrect drawings and incorrectly placed concrete benchmarks, and grid marks.

Cleveland Marble was asked to assist, and Local 3 members stepped up to the challenge despite the obstacles. Members performed a whole new survey, established their own benchmarks and gridlines, and coordinated with other trades to get the project back on track. Members installed 30,000 square feet of impeccably fitted terra cotta on the building exterior and numerous columns on the interior with 1/16-inch joints.

The backup system was challenging due to numerous different hardware components. With a facade this expansive, the tolerances needed to be flawless, revealing no shadowing or imperfections. The mitered corners were installed to 1/16th of an inch to create a tight, clean corner for the entire height of the building. The facade included a one-of-a-kind terracotta rain screen baguette louver system that highlighted the structure. This screen, which our members installed, is just one reason this is such an exceptional building.

OUTSTANDING BAC CRAFTSMANSHIP AWARD

Randy Oliveira

Brother Randy Oliveira has been a Local 3 member for the past 37 years, and for more than three decades, he has been renowned as one of our local’s very best masonry/stonemasons.

Brother Oliveira has worked as project superintendent for BAC contractors Italian Marble Co. and Cleveland Marble Mosaic Co. He has run numerous projects, including at the following sites: Harry Reid International (formerly McCarran) Airport in Las Vegas (largest rain screen project in the country at approximately 200,000 square feet); Bing Concert Hall at Stanford University; Gallo Winery Headquarters in Modesto; Waldorf Astoria Hotel in Beverly Hills; Hayward 21st Century Library and Community Learning Center; and Sufism Reoriented in Lafayette (recently won Best Marble Project).

Throughout his years as a foreman/supervisor, Brother Oliveira has shown incredible leadership, in addition to providing expert training and mentorship to many apprentices and JM Marble masons.

Being nominated for and awarded the Outstanding BAC Craftsmanship Award is a great honor, and we feel that Brother Oliveira is more than deserving of such a tribute. Recently, he was diagnosed with a rare vision disorder and was declared legally blind, forcing him into early retirement. This was a great loss to the marble trade as well as Local 3 and our membership.

Brother Oliveira’s well-roundedness, positive attitude, and ability to lead and mentor will truly be missed. He represents the very best hands in the business for Local 3.

at cleaning up language in the contract and securing an increase to callback pay and lead pay, plus other changes.

The committee of rank-and-file members who helped us prepare for and bargain with the employers provided excellent representation for their fellow members and for Local 6. Committee members’ insight was crucial to our efforts.

We will review the final copies of the two agreements for accuracy, and we will forward them to the members working under the agreements as soon as possible once they are finalized.

Inside Wiremen Negotiations Meeting

There will be a notice for a special called meeting for Local 6 members working under the Inside Agreement. The purpose of this meeting is to provide an update on negotiations. If a proposal for settlement has been received, a ratification vote will take place at that time. If a settlement proposal is ratified, an allocation might immediately follow.

It is especially important that you attend this meeting and participate in the process. In case a proposal for settlement is not ratified, the next date to consider a revised proposal will be included on the notice. An allocation meeting will take place immediately following ratification.

A current dues receipt is mandatory for attendance at these meetings.

State Certification

We continue to receive a lot of calls about the California electrician certification program. We strongly encourage all members to complete the required coursework and paperwork and submit the same as soon as possible. Application turnaround times have been averaging six to eight weeks, so please do not wait until the last minute.

An important note: We do not register people to be electrical trainees at the union hall. It is the responsibility of each individual member to ensure they are following certification requirements.

June Election

Our membership is spread throughout the Bay Area counties and far beyond. It’s impractical to think that we could provide our entire membership with a single slate card of endorsements. We simply don’t possess the intimate knowledge necessary to provide an endorsement in each candidate race and on every local ballot measure.

Our sister locals, however, can help in that regard. By doing a bit of research and following their guidance, you can assist our fellow members in those areas in securing work and electing leaders who have a history of working with labor on issues that affect working families. We hope that you’ll share these endorsements with your families, friends, and neighbors and encourage them to cast their votes in favor of candidates who will work for working families.

The California State Association of Electrical Workers, in conjunction with the California State Building Trades Council and the California State Labor Federation, has compiled the lists of endorsements for all local races and ballot measures. Visit ibewvotes.com and click on “Endorsements.” Then, enter your ZIP code to view the IBEW’s endorsements in your area.

IBEW 40th International Convention

I write this column from Chicago, where I’m currently attending the 40th IBEW International Convention. Our local’s delegation is here, proudly representing you on the issues facing our great union. I can report on only one day of proceedings thus far, but I am pleased to inform you that International President Lonnie Stephenson, International Secretary-Treasurer Kenny Cooper, Ninth District International Vice-President John O’Rourke, and Seventh District International Executive Council Member Lerry Chincio all ran unopposed, and all were elected by acclamation.

Local 6 sends our sincerest congratulations to all of our constitutional officers. We look forward to working with them to advance the cause of the IBEW. Further updates should be forthcoming from the international office.

She Builds 2022

Thanks to all who participated in this year’s She Builds projects. Many from Local 6 donated their time and efforts to this wonderful cause, as they have for the last few years. Thank you for giving your time to those in need.

The She Builds program coordinates projects in which dozens of women from across the construction trades and design industries manage, facilitate, and implement a project in San Francisco to improve community spaces. Several members of Local 6 participated in this year’s project; a photo of them and other participants accompanies this column.

We tip our hard hats to all who helped.

Stay Safe, Save for a Rainy Day, and Come to a Union Meeting!

Financial Secretary
From the Desk of Business Manager Jose Oscar Padilla

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

Please be aware that the collective bargaining agreement will expire on July 31. It’s important that you participate by attending our upcoming monthly local union meetings to receive up-to-the-minute reports on negotiations.

This month, I will be attending emergency response training (ERT) in Pittsburgh, PA. ERT is a union program developed to support members and their families after catastrophic accidents or fatalities. The goal of ERT is to assist injured members and their families by referring them to critical incident stress and/or grief counseling as well as additional services needed during times of difficulty. This service is provided at no cost.

Mark your calendar, talk to your crew on the jobsites, and make it a point to come out and vote. We will be voting for the District Council 16 business manager-secretary-treasurer and the wage allocation for our next raise.

Don’t sit on the sidelines and watch this one. The results of this vote could be life-changing.

In Solidarity,
Nick King

DC 16 members and family donated their time and labor doing cleanup during the recent IUPAT Day of Action at Linda Mar State Beach in Pacifica.
Dear Brothers and Sisters,

Please be advised that on Saturday, June 11, a District Council 16-wide election will be held for the office of business manager/secretary-treasurer and for 20 business representatives.

Steve and I are looking for Local 12 members to turn out in large numbers to cast their ballots for eligible DC 16 candidates. You can vote at any DC 16 union hall or at 65 Oak Grove Street in San Francisco between the hours of 7 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Saturday, June 11. If you’re working, check the mailer you received for an address near your jobsite.

By voting, you can ensure you have a representative who knows your issues and can best deal with them.

I would like to recognize all DC 16 members and families who participated in the Cesar Chavez Day Parade and the IUPAT Day of Action.

The parade celebrates the life of Cesar Chavez as a Mexican-American labor leader and civil rights activist who dedicated his life’s work to what he called “the cause.” It was a beautiful Saturday for us as a labor union to join the festivities with our coworkers, families, and friends.

The IUPAT Day of Action was an equally beautiful, sunny day at Linda Mar Beach in Pacifica. We removed over 1,100 pounds of trash and had a blast walking the beach and dodging the waves.

We had over 70 participants at the parade and over 40 at the beach cleanup — if that’s not volunteer activism, I don’t know what is.

Local 12 has a new administrative assistant named Brittany Castenada. Please have patience with her as she learns her new position. I would like to thank Ede Morales, our former admin, who has taken a new position with DC 16. During the short time she was with us, she did a great job and worked well with all of our members.

As always, I invite members with a special moment in their life such as a birth, graduation, marriage, retirement, or, sadly, a death to contact Steve Be- long or me to share a photo and a few words in a future article.

Respectfully,

Anthony Nuñes

We Recognize You

In March, the Local 510 Seniority Committee, whose members are Daniel Barron, Lothar Henze, and Fred Valera, met to review the Local 510 installer seniority list. The purpose of the committee is to review additions to and deletions from the seniority list and to make certain that no mistakes have been made in the revision of the list. Each member on the seniority list is assigned a number based on their first day as a journeyman installer in Local 510.

Typically, the committee reviews only installer seniority numbers. Some time prior to the pandemic, members of the committee asked if the office could include member seniority dates as well as their seniority numbers. The request to include the dates was for the sake of recognizing how long members had been in the local, with intent to award service pins. The practice of reviewing seniority dates has been implemented, and, as a result, members have begun receiving their pins.

Service pins are awarded based on consecutive years of service in the IUPAT. This includes years of service by members who’ve transferred from Local 1175 in Miami, as well as members who’ve put time in at Local 510. A fair amount of members have spent hours in those halls — and many others — pushing, pulling, lifting, kicking, bending, yelping, weeping, laughing, and just waiting, all in service of an industry that has allowed them a fair wage and an opportunity to create a tolerable work-life balance.

Sometimes, the balance hasn’t been tolerable. The more time they put in, the more our members have missed weddings, funerals, birthdays, baptisms, and other milestones in the lives of those around them.

Our members are the backbone of our local. Their commitment to the union has allowed us to meet the demands of our employers. Members have taken the initiative to learn basic installer duties, either on the job or through classes offered to them by the JATC. They’ve learned skills such as vinyl and sign application and safe rigging procedures and have become certified in swing-stage operation, not to mention boom and scissor lift operation.

With time and commitment, other members have moved into places of management and responsibility by developing and refining their soft skills: communication, planning, cooperation, and empathy.

Much of what we do goes unseen to the general public. Elements of our jobs are even unrecognized on the show floor. Service pins, while just a small token, are perhaps the simplest gesture of gratitude to our members; they are means by which to recognize a significant portion of life spent in service to our industry and our union.

With these pins, we recognize you.

'My Number Went Up!'

A fair amount of members have called the office in a dither about their seniority numbers going up. “My number went up 15,” one member called to inform us. “What’s up with that!”

... Not so fast. If you think your number went up 15 spaces, please call the office. We maintain individual index cards documenting each member’s seniority history, and we can guarantee that your seniority number did not, in fact, go up by 15.

March’s revision of the seniority list included additions of members who came off shop contract due either to layoff or retirement. Members who were previously on the installer list are reinstated to the list in a position commensurate with their seniority in Local 510. Those members who were recently reinstated to the seniority list were members of long standing. Consequently, they came back onto the installer list in a position of seniority that resulted in other members losing seniority rather than gaining it.

Additionally, not many members came off the seniority list during the March review, and nothing about the recent review process elicited concern from Seniority Committee members.

Mental Health in May

May is Mental Health Month. Several years ago, we mentioned in this column that workers in the building trades suffer one of the highest rates of suicide out of all industries. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention listed the suicide rate in the building trades as 53.3 per 100,000 in 2021. The building trades sit near the top when it comes to drug and alcohol misuse, too. In 2018, it was listed as the No. 2 industry — right behind food and hospitality — for substance abuse.

The on-again/off-again work cycle is difficult for workers. Often, through no fault of their own, workers find themselves in long layoff periods. Industry downturns, slow periods, or, as we’ve seen in the past two years, a major disruption such as a pandemic can all lead to growing self-doubt and growing despair.

It’s important to seek help if you’re feeling down. Self-medication can lead to a downward spiral. If you’re feeling depressed or if you find yourself heading down a road of destructive drug or alcohol use, resources are available to help you.

The National Suicide Prevention Lifeline is available 24 hours a day at 800-273-8255 (TALK). For members with current medical coverage who are concerned about substance abuse, Claremont EAP can offer help; their number is 800-834-3773, and you can find them on the web at claremonteap.com. Treat your mental health as you would your physical health. Friends, family, and coworkers care about you. To bring it full-circle: We recognize you.

From the Manager’s Desk

I often look around my office for motivation when I sit down to write these columns. Today, I’m focused on the school photos that my kids have given me. I truly appreciate their awkward smiles and the coiffed ‘dos and fancy threads that my poor wife had to argue, threaten, and cajole them into sporting as a human jack-o-lantern and the joy it brings me to see the chagrin on my wife’s face for the cost of staged and overwhelming yet always overpriced school photos, it does bring a certain point to light (that I’m finally getting around to here). When was the last time you checked your beneficiary cards both at the hall and with the benefit plan office?

Life has a funny way of reminding us of the things we might take for granted. With any luck, this will serve as your reminder.

I’m glad to report that we’ve been out on more jobs lately. It has been a great pleasure to see you all. Keep up the good work of teaching apprentices the correct way to perform their jobs, protecting each other, and protecting our work. If you ever have questions about what work we claim or need our phones are always on.

We are a month away from the expiration of our old contract, and it is incumbent upon all of us to read, learn, and understand the new contract. The redline version can still be found on our website; as soon as we receive the new copy from the international, it will be mailed out to all of you and posted on our website. You will also find our new international constitution and bylaws posted there already.

Again, if you have any questions about what that means for you and your work, feel free to reach out to us. As I spend an increasing amount of time travelling throughout our local, I am continually amazed how much our outlying areas are growing — so much so that it’s difficult for me to think of Stockton, Sacramento, and Reno as outliers anymore. They are all now major hubs in their own right that have experienced explosive booms. Rightfully so, they demand more of our time and effort.

We will not forget about you — any of you. Please don’t forget about yourselves, either. For those of you making long commutes from those areas to one of our primaries: Do what you have to do to keep yourselves safe. Be well-rested and follow our various safety protocols on the jobsite. No amount of coffee, energy drinks, or nicotine can make up for lack of sleep. As a father of four, I can say that confidently.

Learn your limits and stay safely within them. And, as always, take care of yourselves and those around you. See you all soon.

In Solidarity,
Matt Russo

Local 34 Elections

Special called meeting notices have been sent out in the mail. Please pay close attention to any correspondence coming from the local. We will hold nominations on May 26 at 8 p.m. This meeting will be very important, so we hope to have a packed house.

Election results will be announced on June 23 at 8 p.m. We encourage our members to attend and participate in the meeting.

Make your voice heard and help lead the future of Local 34. We will hold the membership meeting on June 23 at 8 p.m. We encourage our members to attend and participate in the meeting.

Tax Fraud Days of Action

Local 34 representatives and our very own rank-and-file members were active during the recent Tax Fraud Days of Action. We participated at the Alameda Courthouse, Fresno City Hall, and the California State Capitol in Sacramento.

In partnership with local and state officials, the NorCal Carpenters took to the streets. We expressed our frustrations with the misclassification of workers and the underground economy. We have fought for everyone to pay their fair share.

Bad contractors need to be held to the same labor standards as our signatory contractors. When contractors commit tax fraud, everyone is affected, including workers, their families, and our communities.

Special thanks to all members who showed up for each day of action. If you’re interested in hearing from our local and state officials regarding the day of action or viewing complete video coverage of each day, please visit norcalcarpenters.org.

PDCA Scholarship Shoot

Congratulations to the shooters from Team 34 for bringing home the first-place trophy in this year’s PDCA Scholarship Shoot. Joe Karinen, vice-president of Local 34, came home with a new rifle. Pat Karinen won the second-place Top Shooter Award at the tournament. They definitely had some good raffle prizes to go around.

International Offshore Wind Partnering Forum

I was fortunate to attend the International Offshore Wind Partnering Forum in Atlantic City, NJ, this past month. During my time at the forum, I connected with various international contractors and developers that have been working with offshore wind for decades. One big discussion involved floating offshore wind in correlation with the west coast.

The project is still over five years out, but there is much to do in the meantime. We must work hard as an organization to reach out and make connections with all of the agencies, contractors, and developers that will be involved. This massive project will dwarf the Bay Bridge and California High-Speed Rail. It’s an estimated 30-year buildout, including manufacturing and maintenance work well after the project is complete.

The Port of Humboldt will undergo major reconstruction. It’ll need to be large enough to hold manufacturing plants and windmills of up to 800 feet long. That’s great news for members of Local 34. I will work diligently with our team to stay ahead of this megaproject that’s sure to bring tens of thousands of new jobs to Local 34 and our fellow members throughout the United Brotherhood of Carpenters.

Work Forecast

May is looking to be our busiest month of the year. We’re currently receiving a large number of dispatch requests throughout the 46 counties.

Two big projects are underway now at the Marathon Refinery. One three-phase project looks to have more than 40 pile drivers on-site, and I’m happy to report that Local 34 has completed all of the sites drilled and impact-driven piles. California High Speed Rail will also employ more than 70 bridge-building pile drivers this summer.

If you’re ready to go to work, please call the union hall for the latest information.

Union Meeting

Our next meeting is scheduled for May 26 at 7 p.m. Please remember that we will be having our special called meeting for nominations immediately following the membership meeting. Make sure to invite everyone in the crew.

Thank you and stay safe.

According to the Audit...

In August 2020, the SF Board of Supervisors’ Budget and Legislative Analyst’s Office turned in its Performance Audit of Workforce Development and Pre-Apprenticeship Programs, which assessed the effectiveness of the City Workforce Alignment Committee. The audit stressed the importance of coordination of workforce development programs and was critical of the lack of simple, essential information.

Here are a few of the key findings and recommendations from the report.

- An ongoing need for citywide coordination of workforce development programs [...] The Board of Supervisors should adopt legislation reauthorizing the Citywide Committee on Workforce Alignment (CCWA) under the leadership of OEWD.

- The Annual Workforce Services Inventory lacks key data points that could enhance performance measurement [...] The Director of the Office of Economic and Workforce Development should work with the CCWA Data Working Group to expand the Annual Workforce Inventory to include program-level information and actual expenditures.

- The department’s use and reporting of program performance data is limited [...] The Department should align its performance metrics with best practices.

“We were always looking for reform that was good for workers, whether they were in a union or not. My hope is that people perceive this as an overall fundamental labor win.”

—Vince Courtney Jr., Former Trustee
San Francisco Building & Construction Trades Council
The $4.3 billion project’s construction phase alone is expected to create at least 1,200 well-paying union jobs lasting a decade. That’ll be a major boon for Bay Area building trades members. As with all PLAs, the Parnassus agreement is an attempt to establish a positive partnership among the owner, the contractors, the subcontractors, and the workers. Its goal is to enable the various parties to set agreeable wages, resolve disputes productively, and address any grievances in a manner that honors all collective bargaining agreements in order to avoid strikes, work stoppages and lockouts for the duration of the decade-long project.

The new hospital promises to be a project of formidable magnitude for the Bay’s building and construction trades workforce. Current plans released by UCSF and project architect Herzog & De Meuron indicate the new hospital will rise to 15 stories, plus include a rooftop mechanical room. According to the California Environmental Quality Act Environmental Impact Report (EIR) for the project, the hospital’s height will reach 300 feet and floor space will comprise 900,000 square feet. The UCSF press release states that the regents have approved the EIR. The exact aforementioned numbers, however, shouldn’t be assumed to be set in stone just yet.

Groundbreaking is expected by next year. We’ll continue to bring you the latest news on this project as it develops.

MENTAL HEALTH AND WELLNESS

Learn the signs for when to get support

We’ve been living and working through unprecedented and challenging times and it’s taken a toll on everyone’s mental health. Some can manage through the stress, while others may need more support. Now more than ever, it’s important to spot the signs and reach out.

Talk often & take care

Be open and honest about mental health with the people in your life, especially your doctor. Starting the conversation now can make it easier to reach out if the way you’re feeling gets in the way of your daily life. The sooner you talk about it, the sooner you can find relief.

Know the signs

Managing symptoms early can protect you from developing more serious conditions. Doing activities to tame stress – like exercise, yoga, or meditation – can help in the moment. It’s okay to take a mental health day and give your mind and body time to recover.

Reach out to your doctor

If you’re having loss of joy or interest in usual activities, difficulty sleeping, or concentrating, or extreme mood changes, it’s time to reach out to your doctor. Evidence-based treatments like individual or group therapy, and medications are all options that might be right for you.
